Dear Prime Minister Trudeau:

Re: COVID-19 Recovery -- Stimulus Spending on Infrastructure

We would like to thank your government for the considerable efforts taken to date to respond to the unprecedented challenges facing individuals and businesses throughout Canada as we all cope with the COVID-19 epidemic. The substantial measures your government has taken to provide Canadians with temporary financial support will help keep many individuals and businesses solvent during the current COVID-19 crisis period.

As we all look ahead toward recovery, we encourage your government to begin laying the foundation for stimulus spending on critical national, provincial and local infrastructure priorities.

Now is not too soon to begin the planning and intergovernmental work required to get infrastructure projects “shovel ready”. Providing federal funding when the recovery period begins – supplemented with provincial and municipal contributions – presents a unique opportunity to address many long-standing infrastructure ‘gaps’ and ‘deficits’ throughout Canada. From a financial perspective it also makes sense with interest rates near all-time lows, provided there are multi-year efforts to contain further debt once the economic recovery has firmly taken hold.

Laying the groundwork now for infrastructure stimulus spending for the COVID-19 recovery period will provide the critical lead-time for your officials and provincial and municipal counterparts to secure any required project permits and regulatory approvals and to complete legal obligations to consult and accommodate Indigenous Nations (where applicable).

As your government contemplates stimulus funding, we urge you and your colleagues to advance federal government tenders and maintain open, fair and transparent procurement processes based on achieving the best value at lowest reasonable cost for taxpayers without preference to non-union, non-affiliated union or building trades union contractors.

In terms of priorities for your government’s attention, we suggest the following areas to provide short-term family-supporting jobs, support for communities across the country throughout the recovery period, and productivity enhancing infrastructure to enhance Canada’s competitiveness and productivity for the long-term:

- investments in major port infrastructure development on Canada’s West Coast, East Coast, and Saint Lawrence River and Great Lakes Gateways tied to road and rail networks to improve supply chain efficiency and Canada’s capacity to get exports to global markets;
- investments in targeted airport infrastructure in partnership with local airport authorities (where applicable), provincial governments and municipalities (where applicable) to improve passenger movements and experience, and to improve air cargo capabilities where there is a clear business case to do so; and,
- investments in urban transit infrastructure in recognition that much of Canada’s population growth is occurring in Canada’s major cities and that affordable, livable and environmentally sustainable housing options go hand-in-hand with expanded transportation access.

Prime Minister, we understand the immediacy and urgency of current COVID-19 crisis measures to “bend” and “plank” the case curve. This must remain our number one national priority. However, we also encourage you, your Cabinet colleagues and relevant senior public servants to begin efforts now to lay the groundwork for stimulus spending that is open to all contractors to bid and that enables Canada’s economic recovery and establishes a solid foundation for a more productive and prosperous future in all regions of the country.

Thank you again for your government’s ongoing efforts to lead Canadians through the current unprecedented crisis. Working together we will overcome the fallout from COVID-19, and build a stronger and more resilient Canada.

Sincerely,

W. Pamic
